Accord Broken -Cong

PARIS - The Viet Cong charged today that the United States and South Vietnam were deliberately violating the Paris peace agreement and said "we will not go on tolerating these violations."

Speaking at a news conference, the Viet Cong peace delegation spokesman said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegates have not been able to carry out their work in the Joint Military Commission on South Vietnam because of obstructionism by Saigon.

The spokesman, Ly Van Sau, also charged that the United States has refused to dismantle military bases according to a pledge it gave in the Jan. 27 accord.

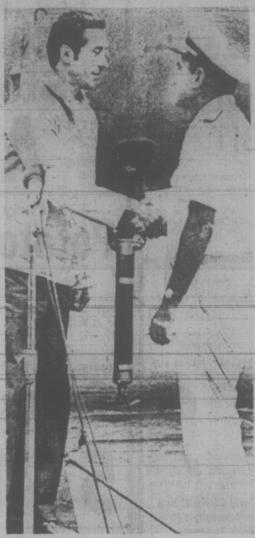

"We shall not go on tolerat-ing these violations because it would encourage the Saigon administration and lead to the emplete sabotage of the Paris accord," Sau said.

Meanwhile, President Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Vietnam peacekeeping force Sun-day and an estimated 3,000 South Vietnamese civilians demonstrated outside a com-pound housing 100 North Vietnamese truce delegates.

At least $3.5 million is being squeezed from the people of Greater Victoria each year to pay the heroin habits of

Oil in the Legal Machinery

States Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia against the Alaska oil pipeline project last Friday was based, not on the environmental considerations which opponents had fought to protect, but on a clause of the Mineral Leasing Act which restricts the permissible width of a right-of-way for such a facility. The real issue is therefore still undecided - and may yet go to the U.S. Supreme Court. A more immediate development foreseen by the oil interests is a resort to Congress to change the law to fit the industry's needs.

The law specifies a maximum 50-foot right-of-way, whereas the Alaska pipeline - from the Prudhoe Bay drillings to the port of Valdez — plans a 146-foot swath. The court's decision brought to

The decision of the United apparently reverberates deeply in should have presented to Congress current United States politics.

The pipeline supporters with multi-billion-dollar sums at stake — had received government support to proceed with the project without regard to the right-ofway limitation which the law prescribed. This fact brought forth a scalding rebuke from the court, in the observation that "the scrupulous vindication of that basic principle of law, implicit in our form of government, its three branches and its checks and balances, looms more important in the abiding public interest than the embarkation on any immediate or specific project, however desirable in and of itself, in contravention of that principle.

The court added that the government "should have taken note of the limitations that had been light a matter of principle which prescribed by Congress, and the case for revision of the basic statute.'

In short, the court's advice to the Department of the Interior was: don't bulldoze your way through the law, get the law changed.

For Canadians, worried about the possible effects of a supertanker traffic in crude oil down the British Columbia coast and into the Strait of Juan de Fuca, the court decision will probably mean little more than a delay in the project. With an energy shortage facing the United States, Congress will no doubt find a majority in favor of changing the law as it will apply to the Alaska pipeline. But if further court appeals were to be made, the matter of environmental effects might still have to be argued. The legal grounds might be widened along with the right-of-way.

Nominated

After President Nixon's vicious dis-play of might last December, that shocked even a partially dehumanized world, the very idea of nominating him for the Nobel Peace Prize is a travesty on decent human behavior. One can only relate it to a blatant attempt to somehow lessen the enormity of a crime against people. Surely the acceptance of the nomination by the Nobel Institute (news item) must be merely a protocol courtesy gesture, supposedly due to his position, and not to be taken seriously, owing to its incongruity

I realize that decent human behavior has always been exempt in warfare. Socalled rules are broken when it is expedient to do so, by both sides. Also immense inequalities of the adversaries can be lauded as a virtue, according to one's point of view. Civilization has a long way to go .- Roger Elgood, 1224 Balmoral Rd.

Audrey Johnson's description of the ballet audience in Victoria was amusingly resigned, but I detected some confusion in her arguments.

It appears that I had the sole honor of claiming a refund on the $16 double ticket I had bought to see What To Do Till The Messiah Comes on a night when the ballet company chose to show its hit of last season, The Ecstasy of Rita Joe. For this Mrs. Johnson dubbed me a "ho-

Basically, I agree with the argument that local audiences hanker after the familiar, the "classic" pieces in a classical repertoire. At the same time I don't think they can be assumed to hanker after last year's mod hit instead of this year's mod hit. Again, ballet and opera are minority pursuits which receive in the view of some people a disproportionately large nunk of taxpayers' support. Yet they charge the highest price for tickets. And in addition we are to believe that they have the privilege of being prima-donnaish about their advertised shows. I think this is all too much of a hothouse. Massively subsidized ballet and opera companies should charge less and offer more than other entertainers. I sometimes suspect the real snobbery is on the other side of the footlights from

Lastly, I think there is a rather pernicious principle behind Mrs. Johnson's Incidentally Mrs. Johnson might have been a little fairer if she had mentioned that the disgruntled ticket-bearer had seen the unscheduled show before - the only person, it appears, in what you call a Ballet Town, who had. A Hoverer

Decisions

With reference to "John Gaul's" letter concerning Jack Scott's stand on capital punishment.

To begin, he referred to sex maniacs. Is not a maniac an insane person? Does this gentleman advocate we kill people because they are sick? Then he said Mr. Scott should invite murderers into his home. Jack Scott has already done this, many times. Every one is a killer, me, John Gaul, Prince Philip or for that matter any human being on earth. It just takes the right pressure to set us off. Timing, like working, is an occupational hazard.

We all take the chance to lose our life each day, murder is just another way to get killed. Yet at the same time, we are human beings, we pay homage to a God, the same God that we are told does not advocate killing or retribution. It is to be remembered that people decide guilt. There are many persons who get on juries, who I feel are so full of hate and importance, that it is a crime to put any defendant on trial for his life in their - Vincent Loveys, Humpback Road, R.R. ### To Make Peace Workable

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. Kissinger's trip to Hanoi this weekend, and to Peking thereafter, is a venture in diplomatic prestidigitation. He must try to build a framework within which an unworkable peace settlement will be-

In Peking, it might just be possible The Chinese have a considerable stake in peace. American disengagement from Taiwan; diplomatic recognition by Washington; greatly increased trade - these are only three of the early predictable

But in Hanoi, it will be harder. What Kissinger would have to do, in order to succeed, would be to persuade the North Vietnamese to abandon their long-standing determination to reunify Vietnam Simply to state the proposition is to demonstrate its improbability. Premier Pham Van Dong, in an interview this past week, once again did obeisance to reunification. "No one can live with a body cut in half," he said.

It Is Happening

A year ago, however, no one would have thought a negotiated American disengagement from the war was possible - and it is happening. Circumstances alter policies, and it could be that Hanoi is ready at least for an interlude during which the goal of reunification will be sought in stages, through less violent

The trick will be to produce a combination of inducements and pressures which will outweigh the considerations of pride, prestige and nationalism driving Haroi to covet the South.

One element of carrot — the prospect of reconstruction aid - is apparent. In the right circumstances it might be an important contributing factor.

But it could easily be over-rated. Hanoi would not wish to appear to be bought. It would feel vulnerable to the charge of having abandoned its revolutionary allies for 30 pieces of silver

Nor is the stick — the threat implied in the continued presence of an American air armada - likely to be decisive Congressional action to limit President Nixon's options, and the general tenor of American opinion, might render this threat less than credible, in any event. So the key to success will be to find something else, which in combination with the carrot and the stick, could tip the balance within the Politburo in

The Soviet Union and China can, if they will, help significantly to influence Hanoi, and Kissinger's trip to Peking is such help. But that expedient, too, is less than completely dependable.

So diplomats are exploring gingerly a further possibility - one which, in combination with all the others, might perhaps be decisive. It is that Hanoi be of-

North Vietnam could, for example, be widely recognized and seated in the UN, either as an official observer or, if she wishes, as a full-fledged member state. South Vietnam, now an observer, would in the latter case also become a member imize the money likely to be forthcoming reconstruction and rehabilitation With Hanoi in the UN, such aid presumably would be funneled through a UN agency, increasing the number of donors

Hanoi would also have the very considerable propaganda advantage of direct access to the world's press. Should she wish a further sounding board, she could summon one of the UN's political organs such as the Security Council into

If the Security Council were made the central recipient of cease-fire reports from the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS), as Canada has proposed, if would be virtually automatic for serious violations to be subject to UN censure. This would be an advantage to Hanoi only if she expected to be - or to be able persuasively to pose as - the innocent party. But it is entirely possible that she does think of herself in that light.

Violently Opposed

Until recently, North Vietnam has always been virulently opposed to any UN role whatsoever in the Vietnam war. She has refused invitations to participate in UN debates, thinking of the world organization as a patsy of the United States - an outdated notion whose falsity was graphically demonstrated in the seating of Peking.

Now, the North Vietnamese have joined in inviting Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to the 12-nation Vietnam con ference scheduled for Feb. 26 in Paris. They have, in private, been willing to consider the use of UN machinery for reconstruction aid, asking questions about the exact extent and nature of UN

If this hints at a change of view, the prospects of stabilizing the Vietnam cease-fire will have improved material-If, in addition, the UN can provide mediation services, formal or informal, to encourage a political reconciliation between the two Vietnams - and the possibilities of this certainly exist at UN headquarters - then there might indeed begin to be hope for a new "generation of peace."

The Individual Vs. the Institution Endless Struggle

We do not have much difficulty in justifying our complaints about institutions. Pick an institution, or pick two or three of them — say, the schools, the courts, the military — and the list of quirements of the schools waste the time and the lives of the children. The fundamentally moderate John Holt has spoken of the schools as jails, and a great many of the young agree. The courts the young agree. The courts are places where the indiffer-ence of people toward one another comes into sharp focus and is raised to a higher power by bureaucratic au-

It is an agency empowered to infect generation after generation of the young with the delusions made possible by almost unlimited destructive power. Fortunately, more and more of the youngmore and more of the young-feel dishonored by military

It is hardly remarkable that the antagonism toward insti-tutions has sometimes gone far beyond a reasoned resistance to the invasions of political authority, turning into an emotional, retching revolt represented by institutions has become almost a reflex among a large proportion of has become almost a relieva-among a large proportion of the coming generation. Social pressures which once secured a high degree of conformity, now have only a small effect.

Keeping Babies

Take for example the fear of bearing an illegitimate child. The heavy condemna-tion of the community for this "offense" now no longer exists, or is so much diminished as to count for little. There was a time when a child which came into exis-tence under these circum-stances was nearly always put up for adoption, but today, with the illegitimacy rate considerably higher than at any time in the past, young unmarried mothers are keeping their babies.

the young to the protective aspect of institutions is a chief source of alarm to the older generation, since so many risks seem to be involved in ignoring the entire ties provided by ways of doing things incorporated in custom and law.

But the parental generation, it also seems clear, is not as sensitive as the young to the hardening process of institu-tional indifference to human values: the parents do not have to go to the schools as they are now constituted, nor did the threat of taking part in the war in Vietnam hang over them with the ugly im-mediacy that was felt by mediacy that wa

Polarization

It would be possible, of course, to make a list of the practical services to people performed by institutions, and it might be argued that there is an obligation to do so. But this sort of rational balancing of accounts tends to ignore that a deep emotional polarization has already taken place: the influence of institutions has been judged as antihuman, and even quite considerable services are likely to be perceived as little more than bribes which lead to self-betrayal.

Why not then, instead, have a look at the spontaneous movements in human striving which eventually take on social patterns? Not until these patterns are stultified by the external devices of organization do they become subject tion do they become subject to the evils of institu-

We too easily forget that in that when books and opportunities for schooling come to be taken for granted, something vital has died away.

Perhaps, in some distant fu-ture, human beings will be so well and symmetrically developed that each family will be able to complete the educa-tion of its own children, but until that day the help of teachers will be needed, and this, we might say, is a natu-ral form of social complexity which an evolving society must develop. The meeting of this need is surely not a social

How, then, do the institutions devoted to education go wrong? John Holt put the answer very simply in his re-cent book, Freedom and Beyond. The schools go bad because they are made to do many things that have nothing to do with education. For one thing, they are given "politi-cal" purposes to embody; they are supposed to produce "good citizens." They also ex-ercise a police function, since staying out of school is a vio-lation of law.

How could we prevent the schools from becoming bad places? One thing we could do would be to take Gandhi's advice, and establish complete separation of school and state. In the education that Gandhi envisioned, the government would have no control and absolutely nothing to say about what is taught.

This alone would go a long way toward making the schools a spontaneous expression of the people — a true service to the complex needs of the society. Where there is Every frontier society, for no delegation of response example, will work out plans bility, there is no submission of children, to external authority or

One might argue, of course, art, but the reply might then be that the kibbutz cannot afford to risk the pretenses, posturings, and time-wasting that often go under the name of "art," and that differentia-tion; to be legitimate, must always overcome difficulties. The artist, one could say, has to prove himself by some means, and if he claims that no one is competent to pass on his capacity, this is no new problem in human societies, nor can there be any novel solution for it.

The point here is that unof-

The danger lies, not in encouraging teachers to teach, or in anyone doing what he knows and can do best, but in

Society's Best Assets there could be no culture without them. We need no elaborate scientific studies to see that men are drawn to widely differing activities, and it may also be evident that these differences For example, a youth of middle-class origins who, thrown on his own resources, finds work in a labor gang,

But in a good society these decisions will all be made by common sense — a common sense that is at best partly embodied in tradition. Good traditions are like the skills practiced in a trade practiced in a trade, representing what has been found out by many generations of workmen, and passed along from journeymen to apprentices, on the job. She was found at approximately 5:20 p.m. Saturday by Grant McGregor, a triend of 1068 Davie. He went to Mrs. Vernon's apartment to see how she was, found the door locked, looked in a window and saw her lying under the refrigerator.

She suffered leg and other injuries but was reported in good condition at St. Paul's Hospital Sunday.

Q. When filing my tax re-turn, should interest be de-clared in the year it is earned or the year it is received?

$ EXCHANGE

A. You may report interest as income either when you become entitled to receive it, or when you actually receive it, but you must follow the same method regularly from year to year.

Operating Costs Cut BCR Profits

Increased operating expenses cancelled out increased revenue for the British Columbia Railway during 1972, giving the provincially-owned line a net profit of $992,499, almost exactly the same profit as in 1971.

Figures were released Friday by Premier Barrett, who is president of the railway. Net profit in 1971 had been 989,569, just $2,930 under the

ly to $44.6 million, up from $38.3 million. But operating expenses in 1972 were $32.2. million, compared with only $25.6 million in 1971.

Most of the increased revenue came from freight fees. Income from freight in 1972 was $42.1 million, compared with $36.2 million in 1971.

Passenger fares accounted for only $299,637 of the total revenue of $44,671,508. However, this represented a light increase over the $267,903 re-ceived from passenger fares

Net operating income was $12.4 million compared to $12.6 million in 1971 while non operating income was $3 million ($2.8 in 1971) for a total

Stanfield Makes Strong Bid To the Big Blue Machine

TORONTO - Conservative leader Robert Stanfield called Sunday for the collective might of Ontario's "Big Blue Machine" in his bid to oust the Trudeau government.

The Opposition leader, speaking to the closing session of a four-day Ontario Tory convention, said the province's continued support of the national party is vital to election success.

Speaking to an oversold lun-cheon crowd of 1,400 conven-tion delegates, Stanfield said the Trudeau government is no longer trying to govern the

Design Control Local Dilemma

How to demand - and get - good design for major buildings in suburban-rural Saanich is a dilemma for the municipal council without legislative competence in the field.

Party in the Desert -A True Confession

I watched the finals of it yesterday on the telly, but being there is essential to savor the full, fruitnut flavor of Bob Hope's Desert Classic Golf Tournament held each early February in the environs of Palm Desert, California.

I know of no other escape from reality as total, as absolute and, indeed, was ready to pack for a second year's attendance when Something Came Up, as the saying goes, to keep me here. The Good Lord willing I will be there next year in that Cloud Cuckoo Land for all five days.

The best way to see the tournament is to arrive early in the morning and claim a seat at the Indian Wells course in the temporary bleachers erected behind the ninth green. From there you may see the players advancing from tee to green on that particular hole, the drives off the first tee, and, if you swivel your head 90 degrees, the drives off the 10th.

There is something happening more or less constantly. When there isn't you may toss 50 cents to a little man in a booth hard by and he, will toss you, in return, a frosted tin of Coos beer. The sun will almost surely be in a cloudless sky, glinting off the artificial lake that borders the first hole and into which Saine Aspace, if he is in attendance, will design him. nto which Spiro Agnew, if he is in attendance, will drive his

The average worth of these couples will be in the neighborhood of 12 million dollars. They will have arrived in Cadillac El-dorados or Lincoln Continentals, never anything else.

APATHY AIDS CENSOR

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter)

Despite nationwide efforts

most South Africans seem unconcerned at the likelihood that their stern censorship laws soon will be tightened

Present censorship govern a wide range of cul-tural and political affairs in the republic and Interior Min-ister Connie Mulder has promised stricter censorship on the grounds that the majori-ty of white South Africans want it. Blacks have no say in the matter.

Last year Mulder appointed a government committee to study censorship and its re-port is expected to form the basis of new legislation to be placed before the current parliamentary session. The committee's report was published just before the year's end and members of the public were invited to sub-mit their views on censorship and the committee's proposals by Jan. 26. But public apathy over this issue was such that, a week before the deadline, only a few letters had been received newspapers joined authors, artists, filmmakers, publish-ers and others in urging people to "swamp the minister with telegrams and perhaps influence his thinking.

But by the deadline a spokesman for the ministry of the interior said little more than 60 "representations" from members of the publicas opposed to official bodies like the South African Society of Journalists — had been reof Journalists - had been re-

rent shortage of energy in the U.S. may be beneficial to Canada by prompting govern-ments to acknowledge the long-range situation, national NDP-leader David Lewis said

The shortage should not be underplayed, he told the annual convention of the Alberta NDP, but it makes Canadians think of how fast reserves are being depleted and the dangers of foreign control.

Foreign companies, which have a stranglehold on Canadian oil research dian oil reserves, are trying to take their profits as fast as possible, partly because they realize "Canadians are waking up to the fact our future energy needs cannot be governed by corporate greed."

The prospect of northern production raised the questionof the area's delicate ecology and "the inalienable rights of the Indian and Eskimo people who live in the North."

The rights of the natives should have priority, Lewis said, and until he gets assurance that the planned Mackenzie River valley pipeline will be to their benefit, he will

Energy Crisis Solution May Be Giant Mirrors

The sun's rays, harnessed through a series of giant mirrors, may be used in a bid to beat the energy crisis which has cut off power from thou-sands of American homes and factories this winch factories this winter.

It is one of several ways being considered by govern-ment agencies and Congres-sional committees to increase energy output.

While increased oil and gas imports and expanded drilling for natural resources are considered the short-term answers, the sun is being ragarded more and more as the long-term answer to the energy shortage.

But the project would be costly. The House of Representatives science and as-tronautics committee eseral funds would be required during the next 15 years to produce solar power.

A report to the committee from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said the major concepts being considered for harnessing the sun's rays are a solar furnace, a heat farm, or a satellite.

In the solar furnace contower would reflect the sun's rays onto a boiler. The heat generated in the boiler would

Great Strides in Cancer Studies

Dr. Frank J. Rauscher, Jr., head of the National Cancer Institute, states that in the past two years, we probably have made more advances in every field of knowledge of cancer than we have made in the last 50 years. There are now from 300 to 400 institutions delay received in the field. stitutions doing research in this field.

Rauscher said that tremendous strides are being made in treatment with drugs. Also, there has been much improvement in the strength of X-rays.

One of the most hopeful areas of study today is on the immune mechanisms which the body uses to get rid of foreign materials. Perhaps soon we'll learn how to help the body to get rid of cancer cells, which are like foreign materials.

Dr. Rauscher feels that another important discovery is that from 80 to 85 per cent of our cancers originate from sources outside the body; perhaps because of some way the person lives, or something he is exposed to, rather than because of some tendency that he was born with. Incidentally, there are many types of cancers. There can be three categories of causes: one is viruses;

another can be a chemical like that in tobacco smoke; and a third is physical—like an overexposure to X-rays, Interestingly, it may take 20 years before a brief overexposure to X-rays produces a cancer.

Dr. Rauscher said that today we know of 23 chemicals that can produce cancer, and one of the most often harmful is that in can produce cancer, and the concern of the doctor says that this year over 75,000 Americans will develop lung cancer, and about 90 per cent of them will develop the cancer because of the use of cigarettes.

It is probable that some day people will be vaccinated against cancers, or more life-saving tests may be found which will enable doctors to recognize early the person with cancer.

Dr. Rauscher feels that one of these days an expert will be able to take a drop of blood from a finger and tell if the person has cancer.

Dr. Rauscher also says that the statistics show that the more sex partners a woman has, the more likely she is to get a cancer of the neck of the womb; virgins rarely get such a cancer.

"It boils down to a decision as to who is the head of this house!"

GARDENING hilda beastall

Trees Muffle Sound, Also Offer Privacy

The planting of sound barriers on our garden boundaries ahead of actual need becomes more urgent as research points out the harmful long-range effects of continual noise. Much as we may hope for a partial reversal in traffic trends, it's hardly likely to be noticeable in most areas for a good many years.

To be effective, the shrub and tree barrier-needs to have leaves of various sizes and textures for it is their surfaces which trap sound. By making mixed plantings of evergreen and deciduous shrubs with a tree or two, we shall ultimately have a reasonably effective sound screen filtering out the sharpest of the noise, and, hopefully, some of the present

It's less than a pleasant thought to realize the need for retreating behind plantings with any resemblance to hedges, for hedge screens are at variance with the open Canadian way of life.

"Daddy, when Lincoln was runnin' for president, did you vote for him or the other guy?"

We can do better by developing a shrub and tree planting in front of our homes in place of open lawns. Each property will then acquire more individuality than at present and the initial cost will be scarcely more than a professional job of preparing and seeding the lawn area.

And think of the time saved from twice a week grass cutting, the watering and feeding necessary for keeping the grass growing luxuriantly enough to need cutting twice

The advantages of a mixed planting are many. Different rates of growth will allow leaf-losing trees such as maple, catalpa, the ornamental prunes and cherries, to develop ahead of denser but more slowly growing, evergreen conifers.

Among shrubs, familiar leafy forsythias and weigelas will grow 18 inches or more in a year, and yet are easily maintained at a height and density suitable to the situation. * * *

According to the general siting of the shrub planting, groups of three of a kind in triangles provide desirable density, at the same time a fine mass of flowers and foliage.

Magnolias and dogwoods add a touch of elegance, and green leaves, some solidly growing rhododendrons, escallonias and cotoneasters add flowers, foliage and berries to

Nearer the house windows it would be possible in time to establish a terrace sitting area, with the smaller treasures in shrubs, bulbs and rock plants (if sunny enough) where they may be enjoyed in the peace and quiet provided by their larger relatives in the shrub planting.

Only by working now to create these oases of peace will it be possible to have immediate access at home to the rounding periods of quiet needed for our care well being.

monds, North knew that his side rated to have a good play for a game in hearts. But he also felt that if he hid four hearts immediately (for which he had full values), East, not vulnerable, would almost surely "sacrifice" at five diamonds. So he pussy-tooted by making the drastic underbid of two hearts; trusting that the opponents would not allow the bidding to terminate at that point.

East, with every intention of showing his diamond support later, now stepped in with a two-spade bid. When with a two-spade bid. When Side Total Council recently discovered that the village bylaws lacked a rule prohibiting the use of firearms. Alderman Louise Dalton wanted slingshots banned as well but Mayer Leonard Proppe said "we've got to leave the kids a little fun."

The Bridge Expert

The purpose of bidding systems is to get the users to understand the precise meaning of different bids, with the ultimate aim being to arrive at the optimum partnership contract. This could be con-sidered the strategy of bridge

But of equal importance are the bidding 'tactics' of the this contract.

The play presented no prob-lem. East won the opening spade lead with his ace and returned a spade to South's king. After picking up the outstanding trumps in two rounds, he led a club to the ace, after which a club was played to the queen. All the defenders made were two club tricks made were two club tricks and a spade. North's tactical bids had paid off.

The first 143 U.S. prisonersof-war today began their journey back from captivity in North and South Vietnam with North and South Vietnam with a 900-mile flight to Clark Air Base in the Philippines. Of the prisoners, 116 were turned over by Hanoi and 27 by the Viet Cong.

No time or place has yet been fixed for the gathering. But officials on the continent would not be surprised if it took place in Paris, possibly

The December 1971 confer ence at the Smithsonian Institution fixed the present pat-tern of exchange rates which is now under stress. That package was worked out by the American treasury secre-tary, then John Connally, and finance ministers from nine

As a rough calculation, one ranking European official thought the new pattern of rates could work out like this: against the dollar; the Ger man mark would go up 5 per cent; the Dutch guilder would follow the mark and the French franc and Belgian franc would rise by some lesswould fix a new and markedly lower official rate for the lower official rate for the floating British pound some-

Design Control Local Dilemma

How to demand - and get - good design for major buildings in suburban-rural Saanich is a dilemma for the municipal council without legislative competence in the field.

At present, no B.C. municipality has this authority out-side the city of Vancouver, but controlled design, while potentially the most con-troversial subject in civil planning, is gaining dimension in the capital region.

Oak Bay has had a design reference panel for three years and last week the city Saanich aldermen have a growing awareness of the problem of design and lately have been derisive toward have been derisive toward some apartment construction plans for which rezoning was sought.

But while councils may suggest design changes they have no authority to order "good" design nor to deny zoning and building confor-

For them the question is a matter of redesign while for Saanich it is more of protecting residential priorities and unspoiled land.

Yet, slab-sided buildings totheir surroundings go up continually, the sole criterion on the developer's part being maximum density, translat-ing: the most profit. The unrelieved boredom of sheer, utilitarian walls is bothering planners, some al-dermen and others and a dedermen and others and a de-sign panel is suggested as one way of curing the malady. There are deficiencies in the panel method, two being its purely advisory role and the late stage at which counsel may be sought.

Another way might be to seek legislation giving council the weight of design enforcement or veto power as prac-zoning and building conformity for the lack of it.

Saanich has more to lose for want of indescriminate development, poor planning and design than the older established parts of the capital.

The point here, to avoid misunderstanding that can occur so easily in discussion of planning and design matters, is that no one, even a tablished parts of the capital. powers, can order this design over that when a prospective developer brings his plans in

To be specific, a design panel should imply civic design and not simply architec-tural design.

"Architectural . design, especially of the type of building which is commonly found in the central parts of cities, is one of the least satisfactory subjects of all criticism. All that needs to be said about it can be summed up in the two words—observation and experience... Much the same could be said of civic design, which is concerned as much with spaces between buildings as with the appearance of the buildings themselves."—W. G. Holford; professor of town planning, University of London.

Some members of Saanich council agree with this point of view but the method of achieving it brings out divided

Ald. William Campbell, whose business is contracting, whose business is contracting, doubts whether a design panel advising council would be able to recommend to the sattlefaction of all. "I don't know whether we're going to gain much by this. I still feel people should be allowed to build what they like." what they like.

"Certainty we want nice buildings, but who's going to have the say of what is nice?" Campbell thinks setback requirements are more impor-tant, and these are tied to zoning laws which he wants more stringent.

At the opposite end of the opinion scale is Ald. John McDonald, a businessman in the second month of his first term on council. Aldermen should have some say about tence to judge:

Ald. William Noel, retired, would welcome provincial legislation enabling municipalities to control development after zoning is granted.

"Now, a developer can get rezoning on the basis of a paretty design and then he can hange the design and then he likes."

Saanich municipal planner

Tom Loney stresses that design control would not necessarily imply good design. The way people would agree on what is bad. process and to add another body to give an opinion, I just wonder whether that would be too much bureaucracy. A design panel may have merit, but it certainly doesn't turn me on like it does some peo-

Planning committee chair-man Ald. Frank Waring, businessman, felt a panel should be used where council has doubts about a project, "but I wouldn't want to get to a posi-tion where everything had to go to a design panel.

He was not sure whether the panel should advise council, the planning department or APC.

Party in the Desert -A True Confession

I watched the finals of it yesterday on the telly, but being there is essential to savor the full, fruitnut flavor of Bob Hope's Desert Classic Golf Tournament held each early February in the environs of Palm Desert, California.

I know of no other escape from reality as total, as absolute and, indeed, was ready to pack for a second year's attendance when Something Came Up, as the saying goes, to keep me here. The Good Lord willing I will be there next year in that Cloud Cuckoo Land for all five days.

The best way to see the tournament is to arrive early in the morning and claim a seat at the Indian Wells course in the temporary bleachers erected behind the ninth green. From there you may see the players advancing from tee to green on that particular hole, the drives off the first tee, and, if you swivel your head 90 degrees, the drives off the 10th.

There is something happening more or less constantly. When there isn't you may toss 50 cents to a little man in a booth hard by and he will toss you, in return, a frosted tin of Coos beer. The sun will almost surely be in a cloudless sky, glinting off the artificial lake that borders the first hole and into which Spiro Agnew, if he is in attendance, will drive his

Your neighbors in these bleachers will consist entirely of large-bellied, deeply-tanned men wearing the long-billed caps of their various exclusive country clubs across the rich land and their sinewy wives, each with an elaborate, lacquered coiffure created in Palm Springs, probably by someone named Henri. The average worth of these couples will be in the neighborhood of 12 million dollars. They will have arrived in Cadillac El-dorados or Lincoln Continentals, never anything else.

Democrats are not actually barred at the gate, but it's said that the 100 most influential Republicans of America will be in attendance. They do not simply admire Spiro Agnew. They worship him as the living embodiment of all that's right in a

I walked a few holes last year with George Knudsen, who needed the money, and watched his smile harden as his burden of tycoons flailed about, made their thousand-dollar side bets and generally fouled up his chances for a pay-off.

It was last year, too, that Hope, using a bull-horn from behind the eighteenth green, maintained a running harrassment of Dean Martin as he approached up the fairway, the jokes, of course, being entirely devoted to Martin's supposed consumption of Old Grandad Bourbon. Martin was amused, but the pro-fessional in his group, who happened to be Arnold Palmer, blew his chances when his concentration was shattered by the host

In one sense this carnival air is more fun for the spectators. The Gold Trail players, a notably grim bunch in most tournaments, look upon the Desert Classic as a golfing form of Russian Roulette. Most play it for laughs. The acknowledged clowns of the circuit, Lee Trevino and Chi-Chi Rodriguez, invariably draw the most appreciative following however badly they may be playing.

The show business personalities, many of whom now spend more hours on the links than before the cameras, will usually include Andy Williams, Glenn Campbell, Jack Carter Lawrence Welk, Phil Harris, Robert Goulet, occasionally Sina tra, always Martin, Jack Lemmon, Clint Eastwood and other amiable egomaniacs who struggle more for giggles than for par. PARIS - The Viet Cong charged today that the United and South Vietnam deliberately violating the Paris peace agreement and said "we will not go on tolerating these violations."

Speaking at a news conference, the Viet Cong peace delegation spokesman said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegates have not been able to carry out their work in the Joint Military Commission on South Vietnam because of obstructionism by Saigon.

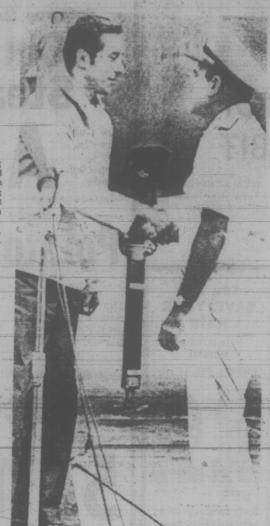

The spokesman, Ly Sau, also charged that the United States has refused to dismantle military bases according to a pledge it gave in the Jan. 27 accord.

"We shall not go on tolerating these violations because it would encourage the Saigon administration and lead to the complete sabotage of the Paris accord," Sau said.

Meanwhile, President Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Vietnam peacekeeping force Sun-day and an estimated 3,000 South Vietnamese civilians demonstrated outside a compound housing 100 North Vietnamese truce delegates.

There was no explanation for the removal of Lt. Gen. Ngo Dzu from the JMC. Even the man who replaced Dzu said he did not know the reason for the change.

nance officials in Europe are forecasting an emergency, Smithsonian-type meeting soon to work out a new package of exchange rates for

No time or place has yet been fixed for the gathering. But officials on the continent would not be surprised if it took place in Paris, possibly as early as this week.

The December 1971 conference at the Smithsonian Insti-tution fixed the present pattern of exchange rates which is now under stress. That package was worked out by the American treasury secre-tary, then John Connally, and finance ministers from nine other major trading nations.

As a rough calculation, one rates could work out like this against the dollar; the Ger man mark would go up 5 per cent; the Dutch guilder would franc would rise by some less-er amount. It is also thought possible that a Smithsonian II would fix a new and markedly lower official rate for the floating British pound some-where near and possibly below the $2.35 around which it has been fluctuating.

The dollar, as the unit against which other currencies are measured, would not change. But the revaluation of the dollar, making it more expensive for dollar holders to buy yen, marks and the rest.

This would make German and Japanese goods more expensive for Americans to import; conversely, American goods would become cheaper for Europeans and Japan to buy. That would be the point of the exercise, a device ena-bling the United States to re-duce the big deficit in its international accounts, the chief reason for the rush into other currencies in the past three
